

Rapid Recovery Completes Refrigerant Recovery at Historic Hyatt Hotel in Palo Alto, CA

Concord, California – January 31, 2006 – Rapid Recovery, a Contra Costa County based refrigerant abatement company, recently completed a project at the Historic Hyatt Hotel in Palo Alto, California, for Complete Decon, Inc. of Benicia, CA.

The project completed by Rapid Recovery in December 2005 encompassed over twenty buildings, 95 refrigerated appliance circuits which contained various types and pounds of refrigerant. In all, five different refrigerant types were recovered. Each refrigerated appliance was tagged with a sticker to show that the refrigerant had been properly recovered and documented.

One of the concerns for Complete Decon, Inc. was it wasn't known exactly how many refrigerated appliances were on the property not to mention the locations. Lonnie Whigham of Complete Decon said "The details were just not there as far as the refrigerated appliances were concerned. I needed someone who could search the property, identify and locate the systems requiring recovery."

Like many other contractors Complete Decon, Inc. is always looking for ways to improve jobsite efficiency. One of the ways they have begun doing that is by sub-contracting specialists for the refrigerant abatement on their projects. "I have utilized the services of Rapid Recovery on past jobs and found that they fill some crucial requirements. They provide me with very detailed documentation, the technicians they send to our jobsites are very professional in both attitude and attire, and they complete their portion of the jobs on schedule." said Whigham.

When asked about the role that Rapid Recovery plays on this type of project Matt Jahn of Rapid Recovery said, "Our job is to ensure that all refrigerant on these projects is properly recovered and documented as is required by law. We located everything from chillers and individual a/c units to freezers and drinking fountains here at the Hyatt and they weren't all right out in the open. You really have to be thorough in your search. This jobsite is now refrigerant free."
