

Robins Air Force Base Housing Recovered Rapidly

Phoenix, AZ. June 11, 2007 – Rapid Recovery, a refrigerant recovery company servicing the continental United States, recently completed a refrigerant recovery project at the Robins Air Force Base in Warner Robins, GA.

The Air Force is demolishing the older base housing and building new housing that will allow for optimum use of the available land, as well as providing military personnel with more modern and energy efficient living spaces.

Rapid Recovery received a call in May of 2007 from All Phase Environmental regarding a project awarded them to demolish 103 duplexes that had been vacated to make way for the aforementioned housing improvements.

Rapid Recovery arrived on site Monday, June 4, 2007 to begin the work. After meeting with Marco Nogueira and receiving the security clearance required from Robins AFB, a quick site walk was done and the work began that afternoon. With the demolition to begin in just a few days, it was imperative that the 207 split a/c units be recovered quickly so that the other work would not be held up. Rapid Recovery is able to complete jobs like this much faster than traditional contractors that have been used in the past by utilizing high speed recovery units that operate on gasoline; there is no need to lug around generators, power cords and other bulky items that are cumbersome to deal with. It was also necessary for Marco of All Phase to know which units had been completed. This turned out to be easier than Marco expected when he realized that Rapid Recovery was placing a bright orange sticker on each unit that had been recovered. It was as simple as driving by the duplexes and looking for the orange sticker on the a/c units, which are easy to spot.

Scott Dykstra of Rapid Recovery upon completing the work on Wednesday afternoon said, “For us it is about serving our customer by getting on the job and completing it in a safe and efficient manner, while professionally representing our customer. Our customers don’t have weeks to wait for this work to be completed. We often hear from first time customers that they are amazed at how quickly we are to complete our work and by the documentation provided by Rapid Recovery; documentation they are not used to getting. At Rapid Recovery, we realize that we are a service provider and we must perform on every job.”
